Globalization and Restructuring of African Commodity Flows

African countries have been incorporated into present processes of economic globalization in a more nuanced way than is usually claimed. The aim of this book is to grasp the diversity of the globalization processes in a systematic way by adopting a common analytical framework, the Global Value Chain approach. Commodity-specific data in two or more countries are taken as a point of departure and the variations and similarities in linkages between local, national, regional and global chain segments are examined. The book is based on original quantitative and qualitative data, collected during fieldwork by the authors.

Afro-Regions

The Dynamics of Cross-Border Micro-Regionalism in Africa

This collection focuses on the making and unmaking of cross-border micro-regions in Africa. Its main emphasis is that micro-regions are not givens, but are constructed and reconstructed through social practice, political economy and, in discourse, by a variety of states, corporations and non-state actors. The case studies include a wide selection of micro-regions all over Africa, such as the Maputo Development Corridor, the Zambezi Valley region, the Zambia-Malawi-Mozambique Growth Triangle, Walvis Bay, the Sierra Leone-Liberia border zone, the Great Lakes region, North Africa, and so forth.

Fredrik Söderbaum is Associate Professor in the School of Global Studies, University of Gothenburg and Associate Research Fellow, United Nations University-Comparative Regional Integration Studies (UNU-CRIS), Bruges, Belgium. Ian Taylor is Professor in the School of International Relations, University of St. Andrews, United Kingdom and the Department of Political Science, University of Stellenbosch, South Africa.

KRISTÍN LOFTSDÓTTIR

The Bush is Sweet

Identity, Power and Development among Wodaabe Fulani in Niger

Kristín Loftsdóttir gives the reader a highly personal insight into the lives of the Wodaabe nomads of Niger, who are striving to make a living between the bush and the city. Spending nearly two years as a Wodaabe, within a Wodaabe extended family and alternating between the nomadic setting of the bush and the urbanised life-style of the capital, Niamey, she was in a unique position to observe the effects that increasing urbanisation and globalisation. Interwoven with the scientific observations are more personal reflections and analyses of a young white woman sharing all aspects of the everyday lives of the Wodaabe.

Kristín Loftsdóttir is a professor at the Department of Social and Human Sciences, University of Iceland.

Multi-Choice Policing in Africa

Policing is crucial to how Africans experience the freedoms of democracy and determines to a large degree the levels of economic investment they will enjoy. Yet it is a neglected area of study. This book reveals the surprising variety of people involved in policing besides the state police. Indeed many Africans are faced with a wide choice of public and private, legal and illegal, effective and ineffective policing. Policing in Africa concerns the activities of business interests, residential communities, cultural groups, criminal organisations, local political figures and governments. How people negotiate this 'multi-choice' of policing options, and the implications of this for government and donor security policy, is the subject of this book.

Bruce Baker is Professor of African Security at Coventry University. His current research focus is informal and formal policing in post-conflict African states.

Hanging by a Thread

Cotton, Globalization, and Poverty in Africa

The textile industry was one of the first manufacturing activities to become organized globally. Africa, the least developed continent, is now increasingly engaged in the production of cotton for the global market, and debates about the pros and cons of this trend have intensified. This book illuminates the connections between Africa and the global economy, and offer a compelling set of linked studies that detail one aspect of the globalization process in Africa, the cotton commodity chain.

William G. Moseley is Associate Professor of Geography at Macalester College. Leslie C. Gray is Associate Professor of Environmental Studies at Santa Clara University.

Promoting Adolescent Sexual and Reproductive Health in East and Southern Africa

In Africa adolescent reproductive health is a controversial issue for policy makers and programme planners. Adolescents are particularly vulnerable to HIV and AIDS and to a host of other problems. This volume makes an attempt at bringing together the social and biomedical sciences and to disseminate evidence from existing programmes, analysing what works and what doesn't at the local level.

Alan J. Flisher is Professor and Head of the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at the University of Cape Town in South Africa. Sylvia F. Kaaya is Senior Lecturer and Head of the Department of Psychiatry and Mental Health at Muhimbili University of Health and Allied Sciences in Dar es Salaam in Tanzania. Knut-Inge Klepp is Professor and Head of the Centre for Prevention of Global Infections at the University of Oslo and Director of the Public Health and Welfare Division of the Norwegian Directorate for Health and Social Affairs.

The Nordic Africa Institute (Nordiska Afrikainstitutet) is a center for research, documentation and information on modern Africa in the Nordic region. Based in Uppsala, Sweden, the Institute is dedicated to providing timely, critical and alternative research and analysis on Africa in the Nordic countries and to co-operation between African and Nordic researchers. As a hub and a meeting place in the Nordic region for a growing field of research and analysis the Institute strives to put knowledge of African issues within reach for scholars, policy makers, politicians, media, students and the general public. The Institute is financed jointly by the Nordic countries (Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden).
